

Syracuse/Rochester Golf Courses

Nestled in the heart of Central New York, equidistant from Boston and New York City, Rochester and Syracuse, New York, are the perfect places for golf lovers who want a true New York golf experience without the hustle and bustle of the Big Apple. Located in the Finger Lakes region of New York, Rochester and Syracuse are graced with rolling hills and forests of Sugar Maple trees that create stunning fall foliage for the area's many golf courses. In Syracuse, the only thing more important than catching a basketball game at Syracuse University is booking a tee time at one of the many spectacular golf courses in the area. Golfers who have already golfed their day's rounds can relax at one of the area's many wineries, shop at Syracuse's Destiny Mall, or visit the historic home of Susan B. Anthony in Rochester.

California Golf Courses

Just as its nickname, "The Golden State", suggests, California offers golfers golden opportunities to book discount tee times at over 900 golf courses year round. California's diverse geography allows for a wide variety of golf courses from Southern California's beachside links to Redwood tree-lined parkland tracks in the north. California also houses some of the finest and most renowned golf resorts in the world with golf courses designed by golf legends like Pete Dye, Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, and Gary Player just to name a few. California truly has a golf course for every tee time seeker.

Wisconsin Golf Courses

Golfers looking to experience high quality golf in beautiful locations should look to Wisconsin, a true Midwestern gem with an incredible selection of golf courses. Wisconsin borders not one, but two of the Great Lakes--Lake Michigan and Lake Superior--so golf lovers can choose to book discount tee times at many golf courses that feature beautiful lake views. As home to the 2017 US Open, Wisconsin boasts some of the highest quality and trickiest golf courses in the country. But golf novices shouldn't fear, there are even more courses that are suitable for beginners. After playing a round, golf enthusiasts can take their pick of a variety of Wisconsin attractions, from exploring downtown Milwaukee to camping in the great outdoors of Door County.

New York Golf Courses

New York is the perfect location for tee time seekers to find over nine hundred golf courses on well-kept landscapes, five of which rank in the top 20 golf courses in the United States. The Appalachian, Adirondack and Catskills mountain ranges create beautiful rolling hills for New York's golf courses, and the Sugar Maple tree lined fairways of "The Empire State" become gorgeous scenes of fall foliage for golfers come autumn. Golfers who book a discount tee time near the urban metropolis of New York City, in the luxurious Hampton beach sides, or anywhere in between will not be disappointed.
